GAME PLAY

1. The Obstacles. There are three and only three dangerous obstacles in the dungeon: the ever-present evil Lurks, the Cross-traps, and the heart-stopping Snakepits.
 - A. The Lurks. There is exactly one Lurk in each of the over two-hundred-and-fifty rooms in the dungeons. As you travel from one room to the next, the Lurk in the new room will appear in the same screen position as the Lurk in the room you just left. Be careful when you go from one room to the next, a Lurk's touch is deadly.
 - B. The Cross-traps. These easily recognizable rooms scattered throughout the dungeon, will collapse upon you.
 - C. The Snakepits. These rooms are much easier to enter than to exit. To successfully do battle with the snakes, you must be quick-witted and sure of foot. Try on your own first, but if needed, hints are below.

2. Treasures. If you manage to evade the dangers and acquire all eight treasures, a special message will appear on the screen. Following those directions will make you eligible for a random drawing on April 1, 1984. The one (1) winner will receive five-hundred (500) dollars for his or her efforts.
3. Elevators. The dungeon is made up of four levels. To travel from level to level, you must find the elevators. An elevator is characterized by a small checkerboarded section, though the differences between up and down are for you to determine. A 'down' elevator will transport you to the next lower level. There will not be, however, an 'up' elevator directly underneath, and vice versa. Make sure you have thoroughly explored the level you are on before entering an elevator.

HINTS

1. Entering an elevator or picking up a treasure will stun the snakes for a few seconds.
2. Trigger one snake's attack, and quickly escape through the adjacent corridor.
3. The first treasure is located on the first level.
